You can also get a visa when you arrive at Tribhuvan International Airport in Kathmandu or at the Immigration Office at Nepal's entry points.

At the Immigration Department in Kathmandu, tourist passes can be renewed for an extra 120 days. But people from Afghanistan, Cameroon, Ethiopia, Ghana, Iraq, Liberia, Nigeria, Palestine, Somalia, Swaziland, and Zimbabwe will not be able to get a visa when they arrive at Nepal's customs checkpoints. Before coming to Nepal, they need to get visas from Nepalese embassies or foreign posts in their home countries.

Gratis (Free) Visa for 30 days is available only for nationals of South Asian countries like Bangladesh, Bhutan, Maldives, Pakistan and Sri Lanka for the first visit in one visa year (January to December). However, a visa fee is required for its extension beyond 30 days.

Health Concern

This is one of the most difficult road trips at high altitudes in the world. You must be in good shape. Most people with asthma or heart problems have trouble adjusting to high altitudes. In these situations, it is very important that you get checked out by your doctor to find out how your health is and if you can handle the hard high-altitude journey for days with no roads, extreme cold, dust, hiking to an altitude of 19500 ft. during the Parikrama, etc.

Altitude Sickness

As you move over high terrain, you may feel the pain and other signs of altitude sickness, such as headaches, loss of appetite, nausea, tiredness, inability to sleep, shortness of breath, etc., until your body gets used to the higher altitude. This can take a few days or even longer, based on the person. For this reason alone, we have made it necessary to stay two nights at Taklakot before going on to higher levels. Drink a lot of water, stay cool, and practice deep breathing. You can't smoke or drink before or during the walk. You should also bring a strip of Diamox pills with you in case you get altitude sickness. Talk to your doctor about how much to take.

Currency

The unit of Chinese currency is Yuan. USD 1 = 6.70 Yuan. 1 Yuan = INR 12.00 approx. Money can be exchanged on the Nepal Tibet Border. Re-exchange all your remaining Yuan at the end of the trip at the border itself before re-entering Nepal.

Risks and Liability

Holidays to Nepal Pvt. Ltd. and its partners will do everything they can to make sure your trip goes smoothly and is fun. But all trips in Tibet follow the rules and laws of the Tibet Tourism Bureau (TTB) to the letter. So, Holidays to Nepal Pvt. Ltd. and its partner won't be responsible for any changes or changes to the program caused by things like landslides, roadblocks, floods, snow, political unrest, canceled flights, late arrivals, delays in getting permits and visas, illness, or accidents. Any extra costs that come up will be paid for by the customer on the spot.

Additional Important Information for Heli trip to Kailash Manasarovar Yatra

Based on what we've seen and heard from people who have traveled with us before, we're letting you know again that weather changes on Heli trips to Kailash can be hard to predict. Between these sites, we run daily flights and helicopter trips, and the trip depends on how those regular flights and helicopter trips go. But we will tell you about any extra costs that may come up during the trip because of things that are out of your control.

Know about Nepalgunj

This is a small town on the border between India and Nepal, about 200 km from Lucknow, where there are more services and infrastructure. Only from here do planes to Simikot leave. Since there is no road between Nepalgunj and Simikot, the only way to get between them is to fly. Small planes flown by local companies make the flights from Nepalgunj to Simikot. Even small weather changes can cause these flights to be delayed or canceled for safety reasons, and it's up to the local officials and flight companies to decide what to do. We are not responsible for these kinds of delays and/or cancellations.

Know about Simikot

Simikot is a very small town on a hill in Nepal. It is also where flights between Hilsa and Nepalgunj stop. Compared to Hilsa, Simikot is a better place to live, both in terms of the weather and the level of service. Flights between Nepalgunj and Simikot and Simikot and Hilsa are only possible when the weather is good, which we can't control. If weather problems, flight cancellations, flight delays, or anything else out of your control comes up, our team will help you manage your lodging, food, and other services, which you will pay for directly.

Know about Hilsa

Hilsa is a border town in Nepal that is empty and close to the border with China. This is where travelers enter China to go to Kailash Mansarovar. If people get stuck at Hilsa because of weather, flight delays, or other things, there aren't many places to stay, food to eat, medicine to take, etc. Longer delays are also possible, but they don't happen very often. At Hilsa, we only have one choice: to make do with what we have. This place is very uncomfortable, especially if the stop lasts longer than planned. At Hilsa, the rooms are like those in the backwoods, and the food will be very simple (rice, noodles, soup, local water, etc.).

There are sometimes short or long delays in getting to and from Kailash Mansarovar because of the weather and other restrictions on the flights that operate between the above-mentioned sectors. This makes the situation difficult, and we can only wait for our turn to get on the next flight.

Holidays to Nepal wishes you a happy and comfortable journey !!!
